should the european neighbourhood policy stop at the borders of the european union s immediate neighbouring countries this book is the first full length study of the neighbours of the eu s neighbours a concept originally introduced by the european commission with reference to saharan africa the middle east and central asia these regions in the eu s broader neighbourhood are often perceived as an arc of crisis from which manifold challenges emanate for europe this timely book takes stock of the state of the eu s cooperation with the neighbours of its neighbours and explores how the concept might help promote security stability and prosperity beyond the countries which are formally part of the european neighbourhood policy how can the eu create bridges between these regions what instruments does the eu have at its disposal and how can it link them in order to respond to the challenges and overcome the current fragmentation one of the conclusions is the suggestion to consider a pragmatic eu strategy for the neighbours of its neighbours which addresses the needs of the broader eu neighbourhood in a more systematic and consistent manner and helps transform in the long run the arc of crisis into another ring of friends

The Neighbours of the European Union's Neighbours 2015-06-11

this book looks both backward and forward with regard to the european union s political strategies towards its neighbouring countries by bringing together the perspectives of critical geopolitics policy studies and border studies it presents a comprehensive review of the european neighbourhood policy and how it impacts the ongoing construction of the eu's external frontiers is the eu committed to promoting integration in a wider european space or is a fortress europe emerging where the strengthening of internal cohesion is coupled with the militarisation of its external borders the book aims to problematize this question by showing how the eu's external policies are based on a mixture of openness and closure inclusion and exclusion cooperation and securitisation the european neighbourhood policy is a controversial strategy where regionalization and bordering homogenisations and differentiations centrifugal and centripetal forces proceed side by side in an explicit attempt to construct a selective mobile and fragmented border a specific focus is devoted to the diversity of geo strategies the eu is pursuing in its neighbouring countries and regions macro regional strategies and cross border cooperation initiatives as new scales of cooperation and the role of other global players starting in the early 1990s many emerging and developing economies liberalized their capital accounts allowing greater freedom for international lenders and investors to enter their markets as well as for their residents to borrow and invest in international financial markets despite recurrent crises liberalization has continued and in fact accelerated in the new millennium integration has been greatly facilitated by progressively looser monetary policy in the united states notably the policies that culminated in debt crises in the united states and europe and the ultra easy monetary policy adopted in response not only have their traditional cross border linkages been deepened and external balance sheets expanded rapidly but also foreign presence in their domestic financial markets and the presence of their nationals in foreign markets have reached unprecedented levels as a result new channels have emerged for the transmission of financial shocks from global boom bust cycles almost all edes are now vulnerable irrespective of their balance of payments external debt net foreign assets and international reserve positions although these play an important role in the way such shocks could impinge on them this is a matter for concern since the multilateral system still lacks mechanisms for orderly resolution of financial crises with international dimensions playing with fire provides an empirical account of deeper integration of edes into the global financial system and discusses its implications for stability and growth focusing on the role of policies in the new millennium in both edes and the united states and europe this collection explores the concepts and practices of masquerade as they apply to concepts and practices of war the contributors insist that masquerades are everyday aspects of the politics praxis and experiences of war while also discovering that finding masquerades and tracing how they work with war is hardly simple with a range of theories innovative methodologies and contextual binoculars masquerade emerges as a layered and complex phenomenon it can appear as state deception lie or camouflage as in the population centric american warfare in iraq that was sold as good for the local people or the hidden violence russian military forces used on each other and on local men in chechnya masquerade can also be part of a people s war logic as exemplified by the maoist movement in india yet masquerade can also be understood as a normal social mask that people don to foreground an identity or belief from one s cluttered repertoire in order to gain agency elements of masquerade can appear in texts that proclaim seemingly unequivocal positions while simultaneously yet subtly suggesting opposing positions masquerades of all kinds also seem ubiquitous in fieldwork research and in resistance movements in war zones perhaps masquerade though is ultimately the denial of death lurking behind the clarion call of security a call that bolsters war by making militarized policing normal to secure populations from terrorists these interpretations and others comprise masquerades of war this book will be of much interest to students of critical war studies critical security conflict studies and ir in general

this green growth country assessment for FYR Macedonia defines and assesses the economic costs and benefits of a shift to greener growth for FYR Macedonia with a focus on climate action. Multi-sector analytic work tied together by macroeconomic modeling generated a detailed green growth path to 2050 while addressing today's economic challenges. Policymakers need to keep the long term in mind both the likely impact of a changing climate on water, agriculture, and infrastructure and growing obligations to mitigate greenhouse gas emissions. This consideration is particularly important for decisions on long-lived infrastructure such as power supply, irrigation, or urban streets, water distribution, and sewers. Innovative modeling of water as a constraint on growth as the climate becomes warmer and drier quantified the tough tradeoffs that will be needed to balance competing demands from agriculture, the power sector, and municipalities and industry. A greener energy sector needs to aim at increased supply security, reduced greenhouse gas emissions, and increased supply efficiency. More generation to avoid blackouts and expensive imports, lignite, and oil replaced by gas and renewables in the supply mix and aggressive energy efficiency measures in industry, buildings, and households providing better transport services while containing accelerating emissions growth will require better fuel efficiency, more use of rail and public transport, and an integrated approach to urban transport that maximizes local co-benefits. Urban areas, especially the capital city of Skopje, hold the potential to lead on greener growth. In recent years, urban sprawl driven by growth in the number of single-family houses that use wood for heating and private cars for commuting has pushed up the energy intensity of urban life as well as the cost of delivering infrastructure services. To a less dense community, the country also needs to plan for the impact of a changing climate on the reliability and quality of infrastructure services. Planners need to decide whether to build infrastructure to be more resilient today or wait to see what happens and spend more on maintenance and rehabilitation or replacement later. For FYR Macedonia, the top priorities for infrastructure adaptation over the next decade include urban drainage systems health and education facilities and municipal buildings the main local cobenefit of mitigation will be reduction of air pollution which is among the highest in europe particulate matter pollution from industry the power sector and road paving can be abated through better equipment while the other large and unusual source of air pollution the widespread use of wood for heat by urban households can be reduced in the near term by more modern stoves and in the long term by better heating options an economy wide macroeconomic assessment estimates the impact on growth and employment of packages of green growth actions across sectors and provides advice on priorities for public investment climate investments pose costs upfront but provide benefits both now and later adaptation interventions which protect tomorrow s output from climate damage are found to be less costly to growth and employment in the short term than mitigation measures which reduce greenhouse gas emissions once sector results are integrated into a general equilibrium model under a green climate action scenario moderate adaptation measures in agriculture and water and incremental expenses in the climate proofing of physical infrastructure would amount to the equivalent of around 0.1 percent of annual gdp while moderate mitigation measures would require the mobilization of resources constituting about one percent of annual gdp more ambitious climate action under a super green scenario would require water sector investments that reach one percent of gdp by 2015 while mitigation investments require two percent of gdp by 2020 green climate action would together generate short term losses to national income of more than two percent if financing is mobilized domestically while super green action induces even bigger losses however both moderate and ambitious climate action promise a medium to long term boost in the level of gdp reaching 1.5 to 2 percent by 2050

Handbook of Media Economics provides valuable information on a unique field that has its own theories, evidence, and policies. Understanding the media is important for society, and while new technologies are altering the media, they are also affecting our understanding of their economics. Chapters span the large scope of media economics, simultaneously offering in-depth analysis of particular topics, including the economics of why media are important, how media work, including financing sources, institutional settings, and regulation; what determines media content, including media bias and the effects of new technologies. The volumes provide a powerful introduction for those interested in starting research in media economics, helps academic and non-academic economists understand recent rapid changes in theoretical and empirical advances in structural empirical methods, and in the media industry's connection with the democratic process. Presents the only detailed summary of media economics that emphasizes political economy, merger policy, and competition policy. Pays special attention to the economic influences of the internet, including developments in social media, user-generated content, and advertising, as well as the internet's effects on newspapers, radio, and television.

since its inception some 40 years ago petroleum specific taxation in the uk has been subject to numerous modifications often these modifications were brought into place not only to sufficiently incentivise the investors but also to capture a fair share for the government however it is evident from the frequency of changes that finding the right balance between these two aims is no easy matter such a balance and the consequent fiscal stability is necessary for the long term relationship between the parties to endure to their mutual benefit still it does not take much for one or other party to feel that they are out of balance as a consequence one party feels that the other party is taking an undue proportion of the value generated and that they are losing out yet achieving that balance and fiscal stability is possible to understand this possibility this book first clarifies what is meant by sufficient incentivisation and fair share before developing a new fiscal system that manages this balance and stability such clarification yields objective criteria against which to assess not only the existing regime but also the newly proposed regime this approach is further complemented by the critical analysis of the fiscal legislative framework and the evaluation of the legal positions of specific contractual elements and mechanisms found within that framework this latter analysis is important in order to reduce the legal uncertainty such elements may create which can otherwise lead to further reactive amendments and revisions to the fiscal regime in the future
