this book presents comprehensive and rigorous research on the acquisition of chinese negation by l1 english and l1 korean learners within the theoretical framework of the interface hypothesis and the feature reassembly hypothesis the results from grammaticality judgment data n 182 and learner corpus data overall scale 15 19 million characters reveal multiple factors contributing to the variability in l2 acquisition at the interfaces involved with chinese negative structures including l1 influence the quantity input frequency and the quality of the target input input consistency and regularity as well as l2 proficiency these factors also underlie the detectability and reassembly of the realis features encoded with bu and mei the two primary negation markers in mandarin chinese in different licensing contexts task modality written vs aural seems to play a role in l2 learners access to explicit and implicit knowledge about chinese negation but the effect of task modality is constrained by other factors such as structural feature complexity l2 proficiency and l1 l2 similarity the approach of employing both elicited experimental data and authentic learner corpus data furnishes new evidence for the acquisition chinese negation by l2 learners the findings of this study are of significance to the examination of the interface hypothesis and the feature reassembly hypothesis in generative oriented sla research this book marks a new development in the field of grammaticalisation studies in that it extends the field of grammaticalisation studies from relatively homogeneous languages to those possessing well established and institutionalised second language varieties in hypothetical modality special reference is made to singaporean english a native speaker l2 dialect of considerable importance in the south east asian region and to the expression in the dialect of hypothetical modality which appears to be indistinguishable from non hypothetical modality in terms of the use of preterite or past forms of modal verbs within a grammaticalisation framework a number of factors can be seen to be relevant to an explanation including substratum and contact features such as tense aspect marking levels of lexical retention as an individual psychological phenomenon and the fact that such dialects have a discontinuity in their development in addition the book defines pragmatic approaches to the understanding of hypothetical modality in both diachronic and synchronic terms the third space and chinese language pedagogy presents the third space as a new frame through which foreign language pedagogy is conceptualized as a pedagogy of negotiating intentions and expectations in another culture the field of chinese as a foreign language cfl in the past decades has been expanding rapidly at the beginning and intermediate levels yet it is lacking in scholarship on the true advanced level both in theory building and research supported curriculum and material development this book argues that it is time for cfl to go beyond merely satisfying the desire of gazing at the other whether it is curiosity about the other or superiority over the other to focusing on learning to work with the other it reimagines the field as co constructing a transcultural third space where learners are becoming experts in negotiating intentions and expectations in another culture it presents a range of research based cfl pedagogical scholarship and practices especially relevant to the advanced level and to the goal of enabling learners to go past fans or critics to become actors players in the game of cross lingual and intercultural cooperation
