through a series of studies the overarching aim of this book is to investigate if and how the digitalization digital transformation process causes or may cause the autonomy of various labor functions and its impact in creating or stymieing various job opportunities on the labor market this book also seeks to illuminate what actors groups are mostly benefited by the digitalization digital transformation and which actors groups that are put at risk by it this book takes its point of departure from a 2016 oecd report that contends that the impact digitalization has on the future of labor is ambiguous as on the one hand it is suggested that technological change is labor saving but on the other hand it is suggested that digital technologies have not created new jobs on a scale that it replaces old jobs another 2018 oecd report indicated that digitalization and automation as such does not pose a real risk of destroying any significant number of jobs for the foreseeable future although tasks would by and large change significantly this would affect welfare as most of its revenue stems from taxation and particularly so from the taxation on labor directly or indirectly for this reason this book will set out to explore how the future technological and societal advancements impact labor conditions the book seeks to provide an innovative enriching and controversial take on how various aspects of the labor market can be and are affected the ongoing digitalization trend in a way that is not covered by extant literature as such this book intends to cater to a wider readership from a general audience and students to specialized professionals and academics wanting to gain a deeper understanding of the possible future developments of the labor market in light of an accelerating digitalization digital transformation of society at large this book explores how capital labour relations and antagonisms structure forms of militancy in vietnam and shows that vietnamese labour militancy is in line with global trends of worker activism vietnamese labour politics is undergoing significant changes with a new labour code that became law in 2021 allowing workers to join worker representative organisations not subordinate to the state led union or the ruling communist party this book reflects on the nature of vietnamese labour politics on the cusp of reform it focuses on nominally formal labour within the garment and footwear industry in the southern part of the country the author argues that while employment in the formal economy is expanding in terms of the absolute numbers of people working in formally registered firms capital employs various ways to make conditions inside these companies increasingly insecure in response workers organise in forms of decentralised resistance the book analyses two of these in detail wildcat strikes and microstrikes short collective work stoppages that occur inside workplaces arguing that labour resistance is structured in relation to capital s behaviour and not only because of weak labour relations institutions and mechanisms this book makes a valuable contribution to the field of labour and social movement studies development studies sociology and political economy and southeast asian studies beginning with the development of the atomic bomb during world war ii the united states continued to build nuclear weapons throughout the cold war thousands of people mined and milled uranium conducted research on nuclear warfare or worked in nuclear munitions factories around the country from the 1940s through the 1980s such work continues today albeit to a smaller extent the department of energy doe is now responsible for overseeing those sites and facilities many of which were and continue to be run by government contractors the materials used at those sites were varied and ranged from the benign to the toxic and highly radioactive workers at doe facilities often did not know the identity of the materials with which they worked and often were unaware of health risks related to their use in many instances the work was considered top secret and employees were cautioned not to reveal any work related information to family or others workers could be exposed to both radioactive and nonradioactive toxic substances for weeks or even years consequently some of the workers have developed health problems and continue to have concerns about potential health effects of their exposures to occupational hazards during their employment in the nuclear weapons industry in response to the concerns expressed by workers and their representatives dol asked the institute of medicine iom to review the sem database and its use of a particular database haz map as the source of its toxic substance occupational disease links accordingly this iom consensus report reflects careful consideration of its charge by the committee and describes the strengths and shortcomings of both to complete its task iom formed an ad hoc committee of experts in occupational medicine toxicology epidemiology industrial hygiene public health and biostatistics to conduct an 18 month study to review the scientific rigor of the sem database the committee held two public meetings at which it heard from dol division of energy employee occupational illness compensation deeoic representatives the dol contractor that developed the sem database the developer of the haz map database doe worker advocacy groups and several individual workers the committee also submitted written questions to dol to seek clarification of specific issues and received written responses from deeoic the committee s report considers both the strengths and weaknesses of the sem and the haz map databases recognizing that the latter was developed first and for a different purpose the committee then discusses its findings and recommends improvements that could be made in both databases with a focus on enhancing the usability of sem for both dol claims examiners and for former doe workers and their representatives review of the department of labor s site exposure matrix database summarizes the committee s findings unfree labor has not disappeared from advanced capitalist economies in this sense the debates among and between marxist and orthodox economic historians about the incompatibility of capitalism and unfree labor are moot the international labour organisation has identified forced coerced and unfree labor as a contemporary issue of global concern previously hidden forms of unfree labor have emerged in parallel with several other well documented trends affecting labor conditions rights and modes of regulation these evolving types of unfree labor include the increasing normalization of contingent work and by extension the undermining of the standard contract of employment and an increase in labor intermediation the normative political and numerical rise of temporary employment agencies in many countries in the last three decades is indicative of these trends it is in the context of this rapidly changing landscape that this book consolidates and expands on research designed to understand new institutions for work in the global era this edited collection provides a theoretical and empirical exploration of the links between unfree labor intermediation and modes of regulation with particular focus on the evolving institutional forms and political economic contexts that have been implicated in and shaped by the ascendancy of temp agencies what is distinctive about this collection is this bi focal lens it makes a substantial theoretical contribution by linking disparate literatures on and debates about the co evolution of contingent work and unfree labor new forms of labor intermediation and different regulatory approaches but it further lays the foundation for this theory in a series of empirically rich and geographically diverse case studies this integrative approach is grounded in a cross national comparative framework using this approach as the basis for assessing how and to what extent temporary agency work can be considered unfree wage labor
