griqua xuhn xoon khwe and n uu voices past and present provides an extensive corpus of words that can be further utilised for the purpose of shedding light on the specific languages from which the recorded words and names were derived on historical distribution of the various groups on the classification of the different languages and peoples for determining relationships or otherwise between the different languages potentially identifying components of place names and ethnonyms from ancient and extinct languages and elucidating other matters that have long vexed scholars who have complained about a lack of recorded data

First-Century Gospel Storytellers and

Audiences 2022-07-29 these essays explore the reconception of the gospels as first century compositions of sound performed for audiences by storytellers rather than the anachronistic picture of a series of texts read by individual readers the new paradigm implicit in these initial experiments is based on the recent realization that the majority of persons 85 to 95 percent were illiterate and experienced the jesus stories as members of audiences either from memory or from memorized manuscripts the evangelists performed the gospels as an evening s entertainment of two to four hours the audiences were predominantly addressed as hellenistic judeans who lived the aftermath of the roman jewish war when heard whole the gospels were vivid experiences of the central character of jesus these studies of audience address and the interactions between first century storytellers and audiences reveal a dynamic performance literature that functioned as scripts for an ever expanding network of storytelling proclamations whose envisioned horizon was the whole world when the gospels were told at one time from beginning to end they invited the listeners to move from being peripherally interested or initially opposed to jesus to identifying themselves as disciples of jesus and believers in him as the messiah
