while scholars have long documented the migration of people in ancient and medieval times they have paid less attention to those who traveled across borders with some regularity this study of early transnational relations explores the routine interaction of people across the boundaries of empires tribal confederacies kingdoms and city states paying particular attention to the role of long distance trade along the silk road and maritime trade routes it examines the obstacles voyagers faced including limited travel and communication capabilities relatively poor geographical knowledge and the dangers of a fragmented and shifting political landscape and offers profiles of better known transnational elites such as the hellenic scholar herodotus and the venetian merchant marco polo as well lesser known servants merchants and sailors by revealing the important political economic and cultural role cross border trade and travel played in ancient society this work demonstrates that transnationalism is not unique to modern times instructors considering this book for use in a course may request an examination copy here

In the late 20th century the world has grown increasingly smaller because of advances in technology and the erosion of the nation state as a political paradigm. The process of globalization with its promises of a common culture, a common currency, and a common government offers a new political model for the world that fosters unity and community at the same time. However, this process threatens to destroy the values, norms, and ideals that particular cultures have wrought and established and to thereby diminish the power of each culture's unique identity. As globalization occurs, society must decide which values will be normative and what roles that social institutions like religion and education will play in selecting and fostering these values. The contributors to this volume examine both the promise and the threat of globalization using the tools of theological ethics to understand and evaluate the social contexts of life at the deepest moral and spiritual levels. This inaugural volume of a projected four-volume series, Theology for the 21st Century: God and Globalization, examines five spheres of life: economics, mammon, political science mars psychology and sexuality eros the mass media and the arts muses and religion that foster normative values for society as the writers argue their efforts attempt to determine whether god is behind globalization in any substantive way contributors to the volume include roland robertson university of pittsburgh yersu kim unesco donald w shriver jr new york william schweiker university of chicago mary stewart van leeuwen eastern college david tracy university of chicago max l stackhouse teaches at princeton theological seminary and is the author of covenant and commitments faith family and economic peter paris teaches at princeton theological seminary

the farm as natural habitat is a vital new contribution to the debate about agriculture and its impacts on the land arising from the conviction that the agricultural landscape as a whole could be restored to a healthy diversity the book challenges the notion that the dominant agricultural landscape bereft of its original vegetation and wildlife and despoiled by chemical runoff is inevitable if we are to feed ourselves contributors bring together insights and practices from the fields of conservation biology sustainable agriculture and environmental restoration to link agriculture and biodiversity farming and nature in celebrating a unique alternative to conventional agriculture rejecting the idea that ecological sacrifice zones are a necessary part of feeding a hungry world the book offers compelling examples of an alternative agriculture that can produce not only healthful food but fully functioning ecosystems and abundant populations of native species contributors include collin bode george boody brian devore arthur tex hawkins buddy huffaker rhonda janke richard jefferson nick jordan cheryl miller heather robertson carol shennan judith soule beth waterhouse and others the farm as natural habitat is both hopeful and visionary grounded in real examples and guided by a commitment to healthy land and thriving communities it is the first book to offer a viable approach to addressing the challenges of protecting and restoring biodiversity on private agricultural land and is essential reading for anyone concerned with issues of land or biodiversity conservation farming and agriculture ecological restoration or the health of rural communities and landscapes traveling genius surveys the half century of work by british writer jan morris including more than fifty books and thousands of essays and reviews from 1950s america via oxford venice trieste sydney and hong kong to her home in wales internationally known as a travel writer she has also distinguished herself across many other genres by writing history autobiographies and biographies and literary fiction and essays existing accounts of morris s work are largely confined to reviews and magazine essays and often concentrate on james morris s sex change and transformation into jan morris this is of course significant to the writing and some critics detect a change of tone and style afterward but a detailed analysis of how her writing works has not yet been undertaken in traveling genius gillian fenwick fills that gap in the scholarship with the first study to explore the depths of morris s complete body of work utilizing close readings and archival research book jacket in shopping for pleasure erika rappaport reconstructs london's victorian and edwardian west end as an entertainment and retail center in this neighborhood of stately homes royal palaces and spacious parks and squares a dramatic transformation unfolded that ultimately changed the meaning of femininity and the lives of women shaping their experience of modernity rappaport illuminates the various forces of the period that encouraged and discouraged women's enjoyment of public life and particularly shows how shopping came to be seen as the quintessential leisure activity for middle and upper class women through extensive histories of department stores women's magazines clubs teashops restaurants and the theater as interwoven sites of consumption shopping for pleasure uncovers how a new female urban culture emerged before and after the turn of the twentieth century moving beyond the question of whether shopping promoted or limited women's freedom the author draws on diverse sources to explore how business practices legal decisions and cultural changes affected women in the market in particular she focuses on how and why stores presented themselves as pleasurable secure places for the urban woman in some cases defining themselves as instrumental to civic improvement and women's emancipation rappaport also considers such influences as merchandizing strategies credit policies changes in public transportation feminism and the financial balance of power within the home shopping for pleasure is thus both a social and cultural history of the west end but on a broader scale it reveals the essential interplay between the rise of consumer society the birth of modern femininity and the making of contemporary london since the 1930s appeasement has been labeled as a futile and possibly dangerous policy in this landmark study stephen rock seeks to restore appeasement to its proper place as a legitimate and potentially successful diplomatic strategy appeasement was discredited by neville chamberlain s disastrous attempt to satisfy adolf hitler s territorial ambitions and avoid war in 1938 rock argues however that there is very little evidence to support the belief that dissatisfied states and their leaders cannot be appeased or that appeasement undermines a state s credibility in later attempts at deterrence rock looks at five case studies from the past 100 years revealing under what conditions appeasement can achieve its goals from british appeasement of the united states near the beginning of the twentieth century to american conciliation of north korea in the early 1990s rock concludes that appeasement succeeds or fails depending on the nature of the adversary the nature of the inducements used on the antagonist and the existence of other incentives for the adversary to acquiesce appeasement in international politics suggests the type of appeasement strategy most appropriate for various situations the options range from pure inducements reciprocity to a mixture of inducements and threats in addition to this theoretical framework rock s explicit comparison of appeasement and deterrence offers important guidelines for policymakers on when and how to implement a strategy of appeasement at a time when the strategy of engagement plays an increasingly central and controversial role in u s foreign policy appeasement in international politics reestablishes the long discredited use of inducements as an effective means of preventing conflict
