this volume explores the grammar of niuean an endangered polynesian language spoken on the island of niue and in new zealand with a focus on the issue of predication since aristotle it has been claimed that a sentence consists of a subject and a predicate niuean constitutes the perfect testing ground for this claim it displays verb subject object word order in which the subject interrupts the predicate and has an ergative case system in which subjects are not clearly distinguished from objects in their marking for grammatical case diane massam uses the framework of generative grammar to carry out a detailed analysis of the internal structure of niuean predicates and arguments as well as the relations between them touching on many other topics including the nature of displacement word formation determiners and thematic roles the proposal is that niuean complex predicates are formed via successive inversion prior to the merge of all arguments high argument merge and that the predicate undergoes fronting to initial position across the arguments with the same structure found also in nominal clauses the conclusion is that niuean does not have a subject in the usual sense and this is related to the fact that the language has isolating morphology lacking all tense and agreement inflection and nominative case instead the language exhibits low absolute predication applicative ergative agents and predicate fronting in lieu of subject extraction the book extends our understanding of cross linguistic sentence structure and grammatical case and will be of interest to scholars in the fields of austronesian linguistics typology and theoretical linguistics
