american moviegoers have long turned to the hollywood western for reassurance in times of crisis during the genre s heyday the films of john ford howard hawks and henry hathaway reflected a grand patriotism that resonated with audiences at the end of world war ii the tried and true western was questioned by ford and george stevens during the cold war and in the 1960s directors like sam peckinpah and george roy hill retooled the genre as a commentary on american ethics during the vietnam war between the mid 1970s and early 1990s the western faded from view until the gulf war when kevin costner s dances with wolves 1990 and clint eastwood s unforgiven 1992 brought it back with moral complexities since 9 11 the western has seen a resurgence blending its patriotic narrative with criticism of america s place in the global community exploring such films as true grit 2010 and brokeback mountain 2005 along with television series like deadwood and firefly this collection of new essays explores how the western today captures the dichotomy of our times and remains important to the american psyche

structuring sense explores the difference between words however defined and structures however constructed it sets out to demonstrate over three volumes that the explanation of linguistic competence should be shifted from lexical entry to syntactic structure from memory of words to manipulation of rules its reformulation of how grammar and lexicon interact has profound implications for linguistic philosophical and psychological theories about human mind and language hagit borer departs from language specific constructional approaches and from lexicalist approaches to argue that universal hierarchical structures determine interpretation and that language variation emerges from the morphological and phonological properties of inflectional material taking form the third and final volume of structuring sense applies this radical approach to the construction of complex words integrating research in syntax and morphology the author develops a new model of word formation arguing that on the one hand the basic building blocks of language are rigid semantic and syntactic functions while on the other hand they are roots which in themselves are but packets of phonological information and are devoid of both meaning and grammatical properties of any kind within such a model syntactic category syntactic selection and argument structure are all mediated through syntactic structures projected from rigid functions or alternatively constructed through general combinatorial principles of syntax such as chomsky s merge the meaning of words in turn does not involve the existence of lexemes but rather the matching of a well defined and phonologically articulated syntactic domain with conceptual content itself outside the domain of language as such in a departure from most current models of syntax but in line with many philosophical traditions then the exo skeletal model partitions meaning into formal functions on the one hand and content on the other hand while the former are read off syntactico semantic structures as is usually assumed content is crucially read off syntactico phonological structures
