the phrase the meaning of life for many seems a quaint notion fit for satirical mauling by monty python or douglas adams but in this spirited stimulating and quirky enquiry famed critic terry eagleton takes a serious if often amusing look at the question and offers his own surprising answer eagleton first examines how centuries of thinkers and writers from marx and schopenhauer to shakespeare sartre and beckett have responded to the ultimate question of meaning he suggests however that it is only in modern times that the question has become problematic but instead of tackling it head on many of us cope with the feelings of meaninglessness in our lives by filling them with everything from football to sex kabbala scientology new age softheadedness or fundamentalism on the other hand eagleton notes many educated people believe that life is an evolutionary accident that has no intrinsic meaning if our lives have meaning it is something with which we manage to invest them not something with which they come ready made eagleton probes this view of meaning as a kind of private enterprise and concludes that it fails to hold up he argues instead that the meaning of life is not a solution to a problem but a matter of living in a certain way it is not metaphysical but ethical it is not something separate from life but what makes it worth living that is a certain quality depth abundance and intensity of life here then is a brilliant discussion of the problem of meaning by a leading thinker who writes with a light and often irreverent touch but with a very serious end in mind if you were to ask what provides some meaning in life nowadays for a great many people especially men you could do worse than reply football not many of them perhaps would be willing to admit as much but sport stands in for all those noble causes religious faith national sovereignty personal honor ethnic identity for which over the centuries people have been prepared to go to their deaths it is sport not religion which is now the opium of the people
