Access to the Courts. 2. Class Actions 1979

since the early 1990s the transition economy countries of eastern europe and central asia have had to adapt their pension systems in minor and often very major ways some of the changes relate to shrinking contribution bases and the inability of government s to finance prior commitments while still having to protect the pensioned populations from poverty other changes however reflect the need to make pension systems more sustainable in light of forthcoming demographic changes the reforms entail a move away from a single pillar pay as you go defined benefit systems toward multi pillar systems that include a funded defined contribution component and change that convert remaining pay as you go components into ones that are more self sustaining and transparent the paper describes ongoing developments assesses the effects of current and forthcoming challenges in light of potential labor market changes and examines choices for a new pensions system with respect to the organization administration guarantees transition arrangements participation requirements role of the government annuitization and other factors the paper concludes that though a one size fits all approach is clearly not appropriate some practices emerging from the experiences in this region and elsewhere may offer useful guidance to others as they undertake deeper pension reforms

Taxation and Electronic Commerce Implementing the Ottawa Taxation Framework Conditions 2001-05-04

using micro data from two recent labour force surveys collected in cameroon and mali this paper explores gender differentials in labour market outcomes covering key areas such as occupational segregation informality part time work and gender wage gaps while women s participation to the labour market is relatively high in africa compared to other regions of the world the examples of cameroon and mali suggest it varies significantly within the continent the data also show that the differential between the two countries in terms of women s participation is driven by the differential in education levels the analysis also reveals that noticeable gender differences can be observed in the employment patterns while men are more likely to be salaried workers women are more often unpaid family workers however in both countries informal employment is the norm for both sexes gender gaps in monthly earnings are found to be much bigger for self employed than for wage workers a result that is consistent with other studies although education of both women and men is likely to play an important role social norms in general deserve to be studied more thoroughly in order to understand remaining differences and their evolution in a context of rising education levels
