the canadian charter of rights and freedoms became an entrenched part of the canadian constitution on april 17 1982 the charter represented a significant change in canadian constitutional order and carried the courts and the supreme court in particular decisively into some of the biggest controversies in canadian politics although the impact of the charter on canadian law and society was profound a new status quo has been established even though there will be future charter surprises and decisions that will claim news headlines peter j mccormick argues that these cases will be occasional rather than frequent and that the charter revolution is over or as he puts it in his introduction i will tell a story about the charter about the big ripples that have gradually but steadily died away such that the surface of the pond is now almost smooth the end of the charter revolution explores the canadian charter of rights and freedoms beginning with a general historical background followed by a survey of the significant changes brought about as charter decisions were made the book addresses a series of specific cases made before the dickson lamer and mclachlin courts and then provides empirical data to support the argument that the charter revolution has ended the supreme court has without question become a national institution of the first order but even though the charter is a large part of why this has happened it is not charter decisions that will showcase the exercise of this power in the future in a series of landmark decisions in the early 1960s the united states supreme court revolutionized police procedures by imposing stricter requirements such as search warrants miranda warnings and the exclusion of improperly obtained evidence from trial today these innovations remain largely intact and form the basis of current american criminal procedure law even in the face of considerable criticism and an increasing conservative domination of the court but despite the survival of the warren court doctrine everyone involved in the system police prosecutors crime victims academic commentators and judges including the supreme court justices themselves regard the current body of supreme court law in this area as a failure in the failure of the criminal procedure revolution craig m bradley persuasively argues that no shift in ideology no commitment of resources and no refinement of supreme court jurisprudence would resolve the inadequacies of the current system these problems arose from a constitutional system that has allowed the united states to develop its rules of criminal procedure on a piecemeal case by case basis rather than through a unified code of criminal procedure as other countries have done only the united states expects its police to follow a set of rules so cumbersome and so complex that one area of criminal procedure alone search and seizure requires a four volume treatise to explicate bradley proposes that the united states should in keeping with the international trend regulate police procedures through a comprehensive and nationally applicable code he examines why the present system is a failure and how other countries have developed their criminal procedure law he further argues that a national code would be constitutional and outlines what its features should be how it would function and what alternative approaches are possible and practicable the failure of the criminal procedure revolution is a groundbreaking effort to advocate systematic and essential reform in america s court system it will be of compelling interest to students and scholars in law political science and criminology

how was it possible for opponents of slavery to be so vocal in opposing the practice when they were so accepting of the economic exploitation of workers in western factories many of which were owned by prominent abolitionists david brion davis s the problem of slavery in the age of revolution 1770 1823 uses the critical thinking skill of analysis to break down the various arguments that were used to condemn one set of controversial practices and examine those that were used to defend another his study allows us to see clear differences in reasoning and to test the assumptions made by each argument in turn the result is an eye opening explanation that makes it clear exactly how contemporaries resolved this apparent dichotomy one that allows us to judge whether the opponents of slavery were clear eyed idealists or simply deployers of arguments that pandered to their own base economic interests the global revolution a history of international communism 1917 1991 establishes a relationship between the history of communism and the main processes of globalization in the past century drawing on a wealth of archival sources silvio pons analyses the multifaceted and contradictory relationship between the soviet union and the international communist movement to show how communism played a major part in the formation of our modern world the volume presents the argument that during the age of wars from 1914 to 1945 the establishment of the soviet state in russia and the birth of the communist movement had an enormous impact because of their promise of world revolution and international civil war such perspective appeared even more plausible in the aftermath of the second world war and of revolution in china which paved the way for the expansion of communism in the post colonial world communism challenged the west in the cold war by means of anti capitalist modernization and anti imperialist mobilization showing itself to be a powerful factor in the politicization of global trends however the international legitimacy of communism declined rapidly in the post war era soviet power exposed its inability to exercise hegemony as distinct from domination the consequences of sovietization in europe and the break between the soviet union and china were the primary reasons for the decline of communist influence and appeal since communism lost its political credibility and cultural cohesion its global project had failed the ground was prepared for the devastating impact of western globalization on communist regimes in europe and the soviet union
