Fields and Streams 2012-11-01 examining the science of stream restoration rebecca lave argues that the neoliberal emphasis on the privatization and commercialization of knowledge has fundamentally changed the way that science is funded organized and viewed in the united states stream restoration science and practice is in a startling state the most widely respected expert in the field dave rosgen is a private consultant with relatively little formal scientific training since the mid 1990s many academic and federal agency based scientists have denounced rosgen as a charlatan and a hack despite this rosgen s natural channel design approach classification system and short course series are not only accepted but are viewed as more legitimate than academically produced knowledge and training rosgen s methods are now promoted by federal agencies including the environmental protection agency the u s forest service the u s fish and wildlife service and the natural resources conservation service as well as by resource agencies in dozens of states drawing on the work of pierre bourdieu lave demonstrates that the primary cause of rosgen s success is neither the method nor the man but is instead the assignment of a new legitimacy to scientific claims developed outside the academy concurrent with academic scientists decreasing ability to defend their turf what is at stake in the rosgen wars argues lave is not just the ecological health of our rivers and streams but the very future of environmental science
