the competitors in the duel are of more consequence than the justice of the cause christianity is a large matter the bible is a large book or rather collection of the world he proposes that the study of the new testament and the other early christian literature be moved out of the realm of theology and into the area of comparative research of religion the book therefore addresses the problematic of christian origins that is the historical process by which a new religion christianity emerges out of an older one second temple judaism included are studies christian religion in its doctrinal expression several reasons have led the writer to prepare the present work on theology he has been a teacher of the subject during the past eighteen years his own method and standpoint in dealing with truth have as a natural consequence taken definite form theology is like any other science in the fact that if it is alive it grows this does not mean that it goes beyond christ and the new testament it means rather that these are provocative of endless growth the object of religion does not grow but the subject never attains a final and static stage in the present life truth does not change but we apprehend truth with increasing clearness down to the middle of the nineteenth century after luther's age theology was engaged chiefly with the issues growing out of the reformation the method of theology was that derived from a past age theologies were comprehensive more or less philosophical and abstract treatises there was a very commendable desire to systematize the truths of christianity but too often the biblical method and aim were sacrificed in the interest of a school of theology or a philosophical principle for example arminianism overlooked certain essential truths about god in its strong championship of human freedom as against it calvinism ran to extremes in some of its conclusions in its very earnest desire to safeguard the truth of god's sovereignty we are learning to discard both names and to adhere more closely than either to the scriptures while retaining the truth in both systems during the nineteenth century the whole world of human thought underwent a remarkable revolution in physical science a new method and ideal arose in the social and economic sphere a new sociology and political economy took shape about the although occasionally there may be certain imperfections with these old texts we feel they deserve to be made available for future generations to enjoy excerpt from the history of the christian religion and church during the three first centuries the history of the christian church especially in the earlier periods of existence is a cheering subject for the contemplation of a christian heart it supplies a commentary which cannot be mistaken on the promise of our lord that he would be with his disciples even to the end of the world matt xxviii 20 the difficulties against which christianity had at first to struggle only serve to prove the overwhelming might of the arm which sustained it it was to be expected that an age of corruption should put forth all its powers to crush that religion which denounced and combated it the progress which christianity made in spite of this opposition constitutes one of the chief points of interest belonging to the earlier periods of ecclesiastical history the working of that leaven which is destined in gods good time to leaven the whole lump is seen most definitely at that season when the world was exchanging its paganism for christianity let any man read the first sixteen chapters of gibbon and then turn from that melancholy record of blood and crime to the history of the christian church during the same period he will then acknowledge that there was beneath that stormy tide of passion and ambition an under current silently advancing whose calmer and purer waters came to light when once that troubled tide had passed away he will see principles of action and rules of life the strongest and the purest ever given to man making their way against all the persecutions of power by their own intrinsic worth and by the power which sustained them from above it is in this point of view among many others that the early history of christianity is fraught with such deep interest to man and it is to be considered one of the great aims of such an history to develope this progress of the church clearly and delineate it with accuracy it would be foreign to the purpose of this preface to discuss the merits or the demerits of other ecclesiastical histories but it may be allowable to direct attention to this particular point as connected with the work of dr neander to develop this progress of christianity faithfully requires that the historian should not only possess the learning and the impartiality which are needed for all historical inquiries but that he should unite profound and extensive views of human nature with what is of even more importance warm feelings for the higher parts of the christian scheme and an eye well practised to discern the dealings of god in the world i cannot but think that the learned and amiable author of this history unites these qualifications in no common degree and i believe that it would be difficult to become acquainted with his works without feeling reverence for the high qualities both of head and heart which adorn their author the present portion of the history bears testimony to his candour and acuteness his diligence and his fidelity his judgment also in disentangling the historical from the fictitious in the acta martyrum cannot fail to strike any one who will take the trouble to compare the details of this history with the original of the acta martyrum as edited by ruinarth to this meed of praise high as it is i think every impartial reader will consider the author to be entitled but still this avowal by no means binds us to the acceptance of all the views founder and living lord to that voice the apostles gave heed and regarded no other to that voice they also have given heed who in the long and weary struggle to realize the kingdom of heaven on the earth have spoken words and done deeds that have scattered new light and given fresh courage to the hearts of men to that divine voice it is our duty to listen and then boldly to live out and to speak out what we have heard no man or body of men can listen to jesus for us we must listen for ourselves no council of the dead past or of the present has a right to come between us and jesus christ and say that it has listened for us and that thus or thus must we believe we owe it to jesus that no voices of men howsoever holy and learned shall be allowed to drown or in the slightest degree confuse that clear voice of his which will one day be heard in judgment as it is now heard in accents of divine grace about the publisher forgotten books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic
