classic anthropology is bennett's label for the work produced by anthropologists during the period 1915-1955 which many believe represents the most productive era in the discipline's history it is also one that can never be repeated given the fact that most of anthropology's basic data the ideas and customs of tribal peoples have been extinguished or greatly transformed by modernization and nationalization the book is composed of some fifteen essays among the issues examined are the emergence of a functionalist viewpoint in ethnology the difficulties of developing a theory of human behavior because of the focus on culture the search for concepts of culture to serve specialized needs the neglect of social psychology by the culture and personality field how value judgments emerged willy nilly or conversely were neglected in ethnological research how applied anthropology was challenged by action anthropology and how the interdisciplinary anthropology of the late 1940s was submerged in the postwar effort to return the discipline to traditional roots individual anthropologists whose work is examined include among others bronislaw malinowski leslie spier alfred kroeber ralph linton margaret mead ruth benedict clyde kluckhohn gregory bateson and walter taylor from the 1920s through the end of world war ii american anthropology grew in complexity while its scope became increasingly global and contemporary much insightful and innovative work continued to be produced by scholars working with native american and first nation communities but the significant contributions of those conducting research abroad soon became hard to ignore the nature of culture and acculturation were scrutinized and theorized about repeatedly the relationship between culture and personality became an important subject of inquiry particular historical reconstructions were joined by more synchronic studies of cultures and more anthropologists gave attention to current events and to unraveling the intricacies of modern culture the discipline as a whole moved away from affiliations with museums and instead cast itself as a social science within the academy at the same time government sponsorship of anthropological research increased markedly through new deal initiatives and wartime programs of the 1940s the thirty nine selections in this volume represent the increasingly diverse areas of research and range of lasting accomplishments in american anthropology during the interwar period introducing these essays is a historical overview of american anthropology during this era by george w stocking jr for a time it was almost a cliché to say that anthropology was a handmaiden of colonialism by which was usually meant western colonialism and this insinuation was assumed to somehow weaken the theoretical claims of anthropology and its fieldwork achievements what this collection demonstrates is that colonialism was not only a western phenomenon but eastern as well and that japanese or chinese anthropologists were also engaged in studying subject peoples but wherever they were and whoever they were anthropologists always had a complex and problematic relationship with the colonial state the latter saw some anthropologists sympathy for the natives as a threat while on the other hand anthropological knowledge was used for the training of colonial officials the impact of the colonial situation on the formation of anthropological theories is an important if not easily answered question and the comparison of experiences in asia offered in this book further helps to illuminate this complex relationship
