The Matrophobic Gothic and Its Legacy 2019-10-31

although in recent years maternity has become a contested site of political discourse the matrophobia that characterizes many mother daughter bonds has hardly been theorized this book defines matrophobia as fear of mothers as fear of becoming a mother and as fear of identification with and separation from the maternal body deborah d rogers argues that matrophobia is the central metaphor for women s relationships with each other within a patriarchal culture analyzing different contexts in which matrophobia problematizes feminism this book begins with matrophobic discourse in eighteenth century england significantly the self sacrificing construction of motherhood emerges at the same time as the novel a genre that develops as a locus for the radical displacement of matrophobia coining the term matrophobic gothic to describe works in which inadequately mothered heroines reconcile with maternal figures that the narrative has repressed rogers focuses on this phenomenon in the works of ann radcliffe and jane austen her consideration of matrophobia extends to early modern male authored texts including samuel richardson s representation of maternity and sir walter scott s exploration of gender roles and identity these issues continue unabated in televised serial drama all told this book powerfully argues for the necessity of confronting the matrophobia at the heart of feminism

Eighteenth-Century Women's Writing and the Methodist Media Revolution 1741 eighteenth century women's writing and the methodist media revolution argues that methodism in the eighteenth century was a media event that uniquely combined and utilized different types of media to reach a vast and diverse audience specifically it traces particular cases of how evangelical and methodist discourse practices interacted with major cultural and literary events during the long eighteenth century from the rise of the novel through the revolution controversy of the 1790s to the shifting ground for women writers leading up to the reform era in the 1830s the book maps the religious discourse patterns of methodism onto works by authors like samuel richardson mary wollstonecraft hannah more elizabeth hamilton mary tigue and felicia hemans this provides not only a better sense of the religious nuances of these authors better known works but also a fuller consideration of the wide variety of genres in which women were writing during the period many of which continue to be read as non literary the scope of the book leads the reader from the establishment of evangelical forms of discourse in the 1730s to the natural ends of these discourse structures during the era of reform all the while pointing to ways in which women methodist and otherwise modified these discourse patterns as acts of resistance or subversion here for the first time is a major critical evaluation of the award winning northern irish playwright frank mcguinness best known for the landmark plays observe the sons of ulster marching towards the somme and someone who ll watch over me mcguinness s plays have been performed throughout the world and his adaptations of Ibsen and Chekhov in particular have been acclaimed internationally. Memory, history, myth, identity, and performance are recurring themes in McGuinness's drama. His work is always formally inventive, demanding, generous, and rigorously aggressive in a way that makes his theatre a confrontational, salient, and enlightening experience. The Feast of Famine is a precise and provocative frame within which to place the work. The title captures the confluence of contradictory forces: the celebratory and communal notions of festivity and the destructive intensity of famine. This study ultimately places these dynamic energies within a carnivalesque consciousness which is transgressive and highly theatrical.

It's All Good 1997

It all started with switching places: a hidden identity and a second chance for love. Nora Clark knows next to nothing about style, but when her identical twin begs Nora to take her place as a personal shopper, Nora agrees just this once and puts her best foot forward in borrowed stilettos to help her sister's struggling business. Too late, she discovers the new client is Erik Morgan, an orthopedic surgeon at the hospital where she works. In real life, Erik, a former Olympic skier, couldn't care less about his wardrobe, but with time running out before an important family event and his attention focused on a long sought career change he reluctantly agrees to meet with his mother's personal shopper turns out she's not at all what he expected and everything he's been searching for or is she because the more sparks that fly between them the harder it gets for nora to keep up the pretense and when she switches from high style back to scrubs what happens when erik discovers the truth about who she really is 1st place laurel wreath awards finalist golden quill awards breathless on the boulevard is the third book in the bachelor next door series contemporary romances with sparkling dialogue and heroes to die for award winning author pamela ford creates realistic characters with real problems that make readers laugh cry and fall in love don't miss the bachelors next door though these books are a connected series each can be read as a stand alone love on the lane 1 dancing on the drive 2 breathless on the boulevard 3 romance on the road 4 kissing on the corner 5 praise for breathless on the boulevard 4 5 stars a thoroughly engaging emotional roller coaster and a wonderful example of what works a truly delightful take definitely headed for the keeper shelf romance readers connection a great story the characters are wonderful heartwarming romantic and fun joyfully reviewed an emotional roller coaster ride of laughter tears and joy a definite must read coffee time romance highly recommended lovable characters a funny plot and two people who would be perfect together but don't know it yet love romances and more a real winner a funny crazy light read to lighten your day merrimon books a most current talk of forgiveness and reconciliation in the aftermath of collective violence proceeds from an assumption that forgiveness is always superior to resentment and refusal to forgive victims who demonstrate a willingness to forgive are often celebrated as virtuous moral models while those who refuse to forgive are frequently seen as suffering from a pathology resentment is viewed as a negative state held by victims who are not ready or capable of forgiving and healing resentment s virtue offers a new more nuanced view building on the writings of holocaust survivor jean améry and the work of the south african truth and reconciliation commission thomas brudholm argues that the preservation of resentment can be the reflex of a moral protest that might be as permissible humane or honorable as the willingness to forgive taking into account the experiences of victims the findings of truth commissions and studies of mass atrocities brudholm seeks to enrich the philosophical understanding of resentment

the international community has followed up its 2001 invasion of afghanistan with a complex multi faceted peacebuilding project however informed observers believe that this western led mission in afghanistan has failed to address the inherent peacebuilding needs of afghanistan and has hindered the formation of a locally experienced sustainable peace in response emerging peacebuilding theories and rhetoric have pointed to an urgent need for revised peacebuilding paradigms and strategies that hold local afghan ownership of peacebuilding activities as a central concern this book responds to this need for revised peacebuilding paradigms and 1 introduces the topic of local ownership of peacebuilding in afghanistan 2 surveys current shifts in peacebuilding theory and practice that are only starting to be realized on the ground 3 sets the context for a discussion of local ownership of peacebuilding 4 reports on the perceptions of foreign and afghan peacebuilding leaders working in afghanistan in regards to the journey towards local ownership of peacebuilding and 5 suggests the creation of a locally designed and led conflict transformation system that might help restructure local foreign relations and advance the journey towards afghan ownership of peacebuilding justice after war is aimed especially to both undergraduate and graduate students as well as the general audience who want to understand the significance of a recent development within the just war tradition namely the increasing attention given to the category of jus post bellum postwar justice and peace while examining the interrelated challenges of moral and social norms in both political and legal domains as well as church practices this work proposes an innovative methodology for linking theology ethics and social science so that the ideal and the real can inform each other in the ethics of war and peacebuilding the main task of this project then is to identify what the author views as three key themes of jus post bellum and three practices that are essential to implementing jus post bellum immediately after a war just policing just punishment and just political participation david kwon endeavors to challenge the view of those who suggest that reconciliation mainly political reconciliation is the foremost ambition of jus post bellum instead he attempts to justify the proposition that achieving just policing just punishment and just political participation are essential to building a just peace a peace in which the fundamental characteristic must be human security it thus demonstrates that human security is an oft neglected theme in the recent discourse of moral theologians and that a more balanced understanding of jus post bellum will direct attention to the elements composing human security in a postwar context history historians and conservatism in britain and america examines the subjects motives and personal and intellectual origins of conservative historians who were also successful public intellectuals in their search for a persuasive and wide appeal conservatives depended until at least the 1960s upon history and historians to provide conservative concepts with authority and authenticity beginning with the great war in britain and the second world war in america conservative historians participated actively and influentially in debates about the heart soul and especially the mind of conservatism particular emphasis is placed on four historians in britain f j c hearnshaw keith feiling arthur bryant and herbert butterfield and three in america daniel boorstin peter viereck and russell kirk who developed conservative responses to unprecedented and threatening events both at home and abroad these historians shared basic assumptions about human nature and society but their subjects interpretations conclusions and prescriptions were independent and idiosyncratic uniquely close to powerful political figures each historian also spoke directly to a large public which bought their books read their contributions to newspapers and journals listened to them on the radio and watched them on television provocative and compelling reba soffer s pioneering study provides a comprehensive explanation of the content context and consequences of conservative ideas that became dominant in britain and remained marginal in america until the reagan ascendancy
